I am starting construction of a 12' x 30' barge with the end goal of it becoming a houseboat. There are other possible commercial uses me or someone else could have for a barge only. If an opportunity presents itself before a house is built on it I may complete it as a barge only. I have more than 100 hours in the design, however simple it might seem, and the method of construction.

Work has been keeping me too busy to allow much boat building or hanging out on the forum, but I did do one fun project this summer which I've finally gotten around to blogging about. Like everyone, I guess, I lose at least one halyard up the mast every year, it seems. And I've been re-doing the rigging of the Blue Moon all summer, so I wanted a quick and easy way to go up the mast.
