But is it the best outcome? I think the answer is no. Not because I believe OPM should be abolished, or because I think Congress should support the proposal to move the work, but because OPM has been broken for a long time and the already-approved move of background investigations to the Defense Department is going to have side effects that will bring the crumbling foundation of OPM into plain ...

I also spent a lot of time reading Carl Jung. It was through Jung—and also Jean Piaget, a developmental psychologist—that I started to understand that our articulated systems of thought are embedded in something like a dream. That dream is informed, in a complex way, by the way we act. We act out things we don't understand, all the time.
