03: A Novel: Jean-Christophe Valtat, Mitzi Angel ...

03 marks the beguiling English-language debut of the youngish French writer Jean-Christophe Valtat. The slim book was written in French, and has been published here in a sharp translation by Mitzi Angel, but Valtat writes also in English—or “some idiom that resembles English,” as he puts it—including in his upcoming Aurorarama, to be published in [...]

Jean-Christophe Valtat's Icky, Riveting 03 | Bookish ...

03 is a fairly convincing cri de cœur of adolescent confusion, the approach at least a relatively unusual one -- even if Valtat goes a bit overboard with the mentally-disabled aspect: beside the girl there's also "Jean-François, the neighborhood idiot", and his aunt looks after children with Down syndrome in a religious institution. Typically ...

03 - Jean-Christophe Valtat - Complete Review

03 was French writer Jean-Christophe Valtat's English-language debut. It is a monologue in one 84-page paragraph, narrated by a writer looking back on his adolescence in a dispiriting French suburb, remembering his obsession with a mentally disabled girl he would see every day at the bus stop on his way to school.

"Jean-Christophe Valtat's novella 03 . . . written in one unbroken paragraph, about a teenage boy's unrequited love for a mentally handicapped girl he sees every day at the bus stop, has an enormous, controlled rage.

03: A Novel : Jean-Christophe Valtat : 9780374100216

Review by Ben Carmichael The unnamed narrator of Jean-Christophe Valtat's 03 is a seething mind. His thoughts, which comprise the novella's uninterrupted, paragraphless soliloquy, obsess over such topics typical to any teenager: parents, school, ennui, alienation—the sort of lugubrious subject matter dealt with at length in padlocked diaries hidden beneath pillows or in the bottom of ...

03: A Novel | Jean-Christophe Valtat | Macmillan

In Jean-Christophe Valtat's dazzling English-language debut, 03, a lyric from The Smiths' Nowhere Fast sums up the narrator's attitude toward feelings: "And if the day came when I felt a natural emotion / I'd get such a shock I'd probably lie / in the middle of the street and die." This belief that emotions, ones worth having ...
