'How Literature Saved My Life,' by David Shields. Criticism can be turned to autobiographical account — as demonstrated by Geoff Dyer in "Zona" and "Out of Sheer Rage," Nicholson Baker in "U and I" and Elif Batuman in "The Possessed." The typical extent of Shields's engagement with a work of literature, though, is to give us the gist of the book,...

Several years ago, David Shields staked out a new literary aesthetic with Reality Hunger. His latest, How Literature Saved My Life, reads like so many strung-together blog posts. But does that matter?

David Shields' "How Literature Saved My Life" Reviewed by ...

In "How Literature Saved My Life" Shields misses his mark. Ostensibly this is a work about - like the title says - how literature saved his life. However, literature really didn't save his life. Like many reviewers, I thought I was headed for a work on the loneliness and alienation of modern society and the redemptive powers of literature.
