I don't read too many historical mysteries, but I do admit to snatching up each Marcus Didius Falco adventure as it comes out. I like Marcus Didius Falco very much. A cynical, lowborn, wisecracking private eye (or "informer") holding it down in 1st Century Rome, the guy would absolutely feel at home in, say, the mean streets of Los Angeles.

In first century A.D. Rome, during the reign of Vespasian, Marcus Didius Falco works as a private "informer," often for the emperor, ferreting out hidden truths and bringing villains to ground. But even informers take vacations with their wives, so in A.D. 77, Falco and his wife, Helena Justina, with others in tow, travel to Alexandria, Egypt.

Alexandria by Lindsey Davis (Falco #19)

Published in 2009, ALEXANDRIA is #19 in Lindsey Davis' Marcus Didius Falco series, which she has been publishing since 1989. It is a series I have dabbled in over the years, so I already had a passing acquaintance with the central character and his wife. I do regret not having read them all (in order).
