Only the G-blocks of alginate are believed to participate in intermolecular cross-linking with divalent cations (e.g., Ca 2+) to form hydrogels. The composition (i.e., M/G ratio), sequence, G-block length, and molecular weight are thus critical factors affecting the physical properties of alginate and its resultant hydrogels ; the mechanism of gelation will be addressed in more detail in a ...

This work reviews the literature published over the last ten years on polymer mechanical properties as a function of molecular weight and molecular weight distribution, Thermal properties, stress-strain properties, impact, fracture, fatigue, creep, stress relaxation and cracking and crazing are examined for a wide variety of homopolymers and a limited number of copolymers.

Influence of molecular weight and molecular weight ...

ABSTRACT Here in this term paper description is given about a type of polyamide fibre i.e. Nylon-66. Here in this paper the methods of preparation of monomers, polymerisation, manufacturing methods of nylon-66, spinning process to obtain fibres, different properties and wide range of applications and uses of nylon-66 are discussed.
